It has been transformed from a day college, for boys living at home, to a residence college, like most of the colleges of America. Two college halls now offer rooms to 150 students. Several fraternity houses are used as residences for their members. Ten States last year sent us students, with a contingent fron foreign lands. The university college can now give students hospitable welcome to the most beautiful spot in the metropolis, free from the drawbacks of the crowder city. The chief danger is chances to the college life every year. The chief danger is chances to the college life every year. The chief danger is chances in my observation as an educator than drink or debauchery. The wift! failure to pay debts, the diversion of money of pacasts and felends from its intended object, the cheating in recitation or examination, in athietic or other college business, injures more characters than anything beside. I fear this tendency is strengthened to-day by the thousands who advocate National dishonesty, I know not whether from feeble brains or from feeble consciences. I see a half-lozen professors here who have been studying during vacation across the ocean. You come home to find orators saying that if you berrowed fy gold dollars as the equivalent of a gold sovereign you can fully satisfy your creditor a year hence with five solver dollars, if we have free-silver laws. Is there not need of education for these feeble brains? You hear other orators saying that, slthough five free-silver dollars a year hence may not satisfy your creditor, the law ought to compel him to take this for the debt. Is there not need in this case to educate feeble consciences? I deplore private dishonesty and oppression, but better ten thousand unpunished private robbers than for our Nation to legalize robbery. Let us provide things honest, Let us resolve that we will untringly work for honest college customs, honest college sports, honest hallot-boxes, honest administrations in city and State and Nation, and above all, nonest men."

DRESS OF THE DAY.

DAINTY LINGERIE. A trimming consisting of a rolling collar and coatlike revers, graduated to the waist and edged with a ruffle that is guite deep on the shoulders and is also graduated to the waist, produces quite a fichulike effect, and is exceedingly pretty and be comirg. A really charming dinner frock for a very young girl, made in this way, has the revers and collar of white satin, with the ruffle of accordionpleated chiffon, the Rue of the revers running straight from the shoulders to the waist. The straight from the shoulders to the waist. Inintervening space is filled with a chemisette of white chiffon gathered into a straight band of jewel-incrusted guipure, which extends horizontally
just under the collar-bone thus forming a sightly squared neck. The belt is of the same insertion, and the sleeves and skirt are of white taffeta
stik, besprinkted with tiny rosebuds.

PRETTY GOWNS AND TRIMMINGS-

Another delightful little dinner gown which is intended for one of this senson's debutantes is of white poult de sole. The skirt is made short and round, and is trimmed at the hem with four rows of white satin ribbon about an inch and a quarter wide. Over the skirt are gathered strips of white gauze, about eight inches apart at the hem, the diaphanous material showing the satin ribben through the gathers. These strips converge at the walst, where they are about an inch apart. The effect of the skirt is very gauzy and pretty. The effect of the skirt is very gauzy and pretty. The sleeves of the bodice consist of short gathered ruffles of talle standing straight out, with s.x loops of white satin ribbon arranged like epaulets. The low-necked bodice is of the white poult de soie, covered with the gauze and strips of white satin ribbon alternately, and confined at the waist by a white satin belt.

The jack-tlike trimming which is so universal just now has already been alluded to. A gray satin bodice has gray crèpe de chine gathered into the shoulder seam. This is then brought around the shoulder seam. This is then drought a simulate a bolero jacket, and sewed into the seam. Under the belt is an accordion-pleated frill of the crépe de chine over a gray satin petticoat. The upper drapery of the sleeves is of the crépe and the lower part of the satin.

A pretty but at the same time extremely simple street costume by Sara Meyer is a green crepeline. The skirt is trimmed with two baid; the moiré of a lighter shade, edged with braid; the moiré of a lighter shade, edged with braid; the bedice is a jacket, cut open and pointed at the waist, with the short skirts commencing at the hips. The revers and the edges of the jacket have cach a line of buttons extending down the sides; the chemisette is of light green crépon, and the sieeves are extremely moderate.

A charming autumn gown, made after a m from Roednitz, is of plum-colored cloth. The skirt is trimmed with insertions of heavy guipure laid over bands of purple velvet, one being on either side of the front breadth, extending from the waist to the hem of the dress, and two others of the same length a little further back on the skirt. The bodice has a plain front, the opening being at the side, under one of the bretelles. These bre-telles consist of a fold of the material, in the centre of which is laid a band of the guipure over velvet; they start from the shoulders, where each is fastened with a knot of velvet ribbon, and nearly meet at the waist, where they are connected with a bow of the velvet ribbon, which also finishes the belt. The sleeves, which are long and tight, have each a shost puff at the top, and two bands of the velvet and guipure starting from the ence on the shoulder and converging again at the bottom of the puff. centre of which is laid a band of the guipure over

HILL AND THE STATE TICKET.

From The Providence Journal. Withur F. Porter is doubtless an estimable gentie-man, but under ordinary conditions he would never have been thought of as the Democratic candidate for Governor in New-York State. The selection of so thoroughly an unknown person as the party standard-bearer is a good indication of the present straits in which the Democratic organization finds itself.

London, Sept. 30 .- "The Post" to-morrow will publish a dispatch received by a news agency here saying that the Anglo-Egyptian expedition will not advance beyond Dongola in 1896. In the mean time Korti and Debbeh will be garrisoned

A police system will be established, and the railway to Kalbar will be completed. No British troops will remain except those in charge of machine guns and the engineers. It is not likely that Dongola will be attacked, but, in any event, perfect confidence is felt in the Egyptian garrison. It is a mistake, the dispatch says, to suppose that the Dervish power is broken. It is regarded as certain that the Dervishes will flercely contest the possession of Omdurman in case of an advance being decided upon. The present condition of Expitian finances renders an advance almost impossible, the difficulty arising from the opposition to the proposal to float a loan.

Paris, Sept. 30 .- A dispatch from Cairo says that great excitement has been caused there by the attempt on the part of the British to induce the banks to advance 26,000,000 francs against the Egyptian revenue for the purpose of de-fraying the expenses of the Dongola expedition. It is said that the committee of French bond-holders will resist by law the attempt to raise the loan in the manner proposed.

BRITISH SYMPATHY WITH MR. GOULD. London, Sept. 30.—Howard Gould's letter to the Council of the Yacht Racing Association, which was published here this morning, is freely com-mented upon by this afternoon's papers.

"The St. James's Gazette" says: "Mr. Gould's correspondence is a sort of sequel to Lord Dunraven's unfortunate charges against the Defender. Our sympathies are with Mr. Gould. It would be far better to give up international sport altogether if it cannot be carried on as between gentlemen." "The Pall Mall Gazette" agrees with Mr. Gould in thinking that, as regards the visit of the com-

"The Niagara," "The Gazette" adds, "was measured regularly by the Yacht Racing Association's official measurer. If there was affithing irregular in the formation of the vessel's tanks Mr. Gourd ought to have been informed of them. At any rate, it was had form for the committee to board the yacht in her owner's absence in a belated effort to remedy the oversight of their own official." Gould should feel grateful, rather than otherwise, that the circumstances of the visit of the commit-

THE EMPEROR DEFENDS HIS YACHT.

A LETTER TO "THE FIELD" WILL SHOW THAT THE METEOR WAS NOT TO BLAME IN THE COLLISION WITH THE ISOLDE.

London, Sept. 20.-Richard Allan, the Scottish yachtsman who represented the German Emperor on board that monarch's racing yaent Meteor during the summer just past, is to write a letter to "The Field," under instructions from the Kaiser, explaining the circumstances of the collision between the Meteor and the Isolde in the races of the Royal Albert Yacht Club's regatta at Southsea on August 18, which resulted in the death of Baron von Zedtwitz, the owner of the Isoide, who was struck by a falling block or piece of the yacht's shattered mast and died soon afterward.

Mr. Alan will furnish facts totally disproving the statements made in "The Field's" attack upon the Meteor a day or two after the accident, in which that paper ascribed the collision—an error of judgment on the part of those hamming the Meteor. It is expected that the letter will attract great interest, as it will virtually be from the Emperor himself.

HORSEWHIPPED HER SON-IN-LAW.

MRS. J. D. MURPHY, OF COLLEGE POINT, OBJECT-ED TO A RUNAWAY MARRIAGE

Something of a sensation was created in College Point, Long Island, yesterday, when it became known that Mrs. J. D. Murphy, wife of a well-todo New-York builder, horsewhipped Elmore T. Reilly, when she learned that he had secretly manried her daughter, Mary Agnes Murphy.

The Murphy family has been staying in College

Point for several seasons. This year it occu-pied the John Roach homestead on the Boulevard, Miss Murphy, who is about twenty-five years old, is described as a handsome brunette, and Reilly is also said to be good-looking and about his wife's age. It is said that Reilly made the acquaintance of Miss Murphy a long time ago. Mrs. Murphy objected to Reilly paying attentions to her daughter, it is said, on account of the difference of their positions, Reilly bein a machinist. The trouble however, did not seem to pay much attention to Mrs. Murphy's objections, for they decided to get married. The wedding is believed to have taken place about two weeks ago, but it was not announced until yesterday, when it appeared in a New-York paper under the heading "Married." The notice did not state when the marriage took place, and a reporter was yesterday unable to find out, because the people interested would not talk abo had married Relily she became furious. She learned that her son-in-law was employed at the Dominican Convent, repairing the heating apparatus, and she went there in search of her daughter. She had prepared herself for the meeting with Reilly and prepared herself for the meeting with Reilly and had a whip. The Sisters who have charge of the home told Mrs. Murphy that her daughter was not there. Mrs. Murphy, it is said, went downstairs in the convent where Reilly was at work, and began to beat him with the whip. She did not stop until his cries were heard by the Sisters, who appeared and separated Mrs. Murphy and Reilly.

Helly did not work much longer and soon left the convent. He and his wife are living together, and he says they cannot be parted.
